Copy the title of the article. Remember that articles are punctuated with quotation marks.	Explain what information the subtitle (right beneath the title) tells us about the article.
Subheadings are different from subtitles. Subheadings appear throughout the article and act sort of like mini chapters, dividing the article into little sections. Copy a subheading that you see. Summarize what that little part is about.	Where does the author use bold-faced words? Why are they in bold? Sometimes authors put words or phrases in italics. Do you see any words in italics? Why did the author do this?
Look for a graphic or image . It could be a photo, a chart, a map, a diagram, etc. What does it show?	Does the author use any words written in ALL CAPS? If so, why?
Most graphics or images have a caption underneath it (or right above it or to the side). What information is in the caption?	Is there anything else in this article that makes it interesting or helpful to look at and read? Does anything else stand out to you?
