Interest Survey #2
Descriptive Topics

These are topics that you write about in order to show more about a person, place, idea, experience, or feeling in a more personal way. Some emotions or personal opinions could be involved, but it's more about using powerful words and descriptions to help your audience see things in a certain way. Often found in literary responses, poems, journals, personal writings, movie and book narrations etc., prompts like this are designed to help the reader see, feel, hear, and experience what the writer has created.

Complete the following activities:

1) Write a few words or brief sentences about next to or near each topic.
2) Place a * next to the topics that you have a lot of knowledge about!
3) Feel free to change 1-2 words in any of the topics to turn that topic into something more interesting to you. For instance, change the word "dessert" in the first topic and you could replace it with "pizza" or "model airplane" or anything else you l

Describe an object that is special to you.

Give a tour of one room in your house by describing the most important objects in that room.

Describe your favorite toy as a little kid.

Describe your favorite piece of furniture where you like to spend time and relax.

Describe something that you would bury in a time capsule to tell people about what life is like today.

Describe an object that has been in your family for a long time.

Describe your favorite or most special type of food to eat.

Describe an amazing type of technology we have now to a time traveler from 100 years ago.

Describe the most significant source of stress in teens' lives.

Describe one nonmaterial item that makes you happy.

Describe your idea of what love is.

Describe the one thing that brings you the greatest happiness.

Describe one thing you would like to change about the world.

Describe a favorite character from a book or story.