Quick Check Quiz

Instructions
The questions below will ask you to reflect on skills and concepts that you have learned about and practiced this week. Read the narrative passage below and then respond to each question carefully by selecting the best answer.

I still remember feeling so uncertain and nervous when I first landed in America that my mouth was like dry cotton, my hands and knees shaking. Coming in for the landing, I stared out the tiny, dirty window in the airplane at these strange snow-covered houses. I'd heard of snow and I'd seen it on TV, but it's one thing to know about it and quite another thing to be there for real! I worried about this new setting, I worried about all my luggage and what would happen if it got lost, and I worried about not fitting in at all. I stumbled off the airplane and felt that cold shock of icy air slam into me as I tried to walk from the actual plane to the airport terminal. It was weird for me to see all these people bundled in thick coats and scarves, which no one even owned where I came from. More than anything, I just wanted to grab my luggage and have my personal things with me, things from home that would make me feel better. I already felt so confused and uncomfortable in this new world, but thankfully I saw my cousin running towards me from the baggage area. I felt so happy and excited since I hadn't seen her—my cousin, my best friend—in over four years since she moved to America. I practically ran to the exit, past the baggage area, totally forgetting that I had three huge suitcases to pick up from my flight. What I learned in that moment was that all the things in the world are meaningless when you feel lost, alone, uncertain… and then you spot the face of the one person, your best friend, the only thing that matters.

Question 1 The reader can most likely determine that the author's purpose is to: A) inform us about the differences in weather patterns B) help us understand what's really important in life C) show us that luggage can become lost in flight D) share with us her frightening first trip to America	Question 2 The sentence from the passage that most clearly represents the theme (life lesson, key idea, etc) is: A) "I just wanted to grab my luggage and have my personal things…" B) "It was weird for me to see all these people roaming around…" C) "I still remember feeling so uncertain and so nervous…" D) "What I learned in that moment was…the only thing that matters."
Question 3 Which of the following is true about the narrative selection? A) The narrative includes too many people and too many moments. B) The narrative does not convey a life lesson from the experience. C) The narrative hooks the reader by revealing her inner thoughts. D) The narrative jumps between settings and is confusing.	Question 4 The reader can conclude (or infer) that the narrator A) will likely stay in America for a long time because of all the luggage B) is excited about the snow and can't wait to ski with her cousin C) may return to her home country, bringing her cousin back with her D) is moving to America permanently and will never return home

© languageartsteachers

Quick Check Quiz - ANSWER KEY

Instructions
The questions below will ask you to reflect on skills and concepts that you have learned about and practiced this week. Read the narrative passage below and then respond to each question carefully by selecting the best answer.

I still remember feeling so uncertain and nervous when I first landed in America that my mouth was like dry cotton, my hands and knees shaking. Coming in for the landing, I stared out the tiny, dirty window in the airplane at these strange snow-covered houses. I'd heard of snow and I'd seen it on TV, but it's one thing to know about it and quite another thing to be there for real! I worried about this new setting, I worried about all my luggage and what would happen if it got lost, and I worried about not fitting in at all. I stumbled off the airplane and felt that cold shock of icy air slam into me as I tried to walk from the actual plane to the airport terminal. It was weird for me to see all these people bundled in thick coats and scarves, which no one even owned where I came from. More than anything, I just wanted to grab my luggage and have my personal things with me, things from home that would make me feel better. I already felt so confused and uncomfortable in this new world, but thankfully I saw my cousin running towards me from the baggage area. I felt so happy and excited since I hadn't seen her—my cousin, my best friend—in over four years since she moved to America. I practically ran to the exit, past the baggage area, totally forgetting that I had three huge suitcases to pick up from my flight. What I learned in that moment was that all the things in the world are meaningless when you feel lost, alone, uncertain… and then you spot the face of the one person, your best friend, the only thing that matters.

Question 1 The reader can most likely determine that the author's purpose is to: A) inform us about the differences in weather patterns B) help us understand what's really important in life C) show us that luggage can become lost in flight D) share with us her frightening first trip to America	Question 2 The sentence from the passage that most clearly represents the theme (life lesson, key idea, etc) is: A) "I just wanted to grab my luggage and have my personal things…" B) "It was weird for me to see all these people roaming around…" C) "I still remember feeling so uncertain and so nervous…" D) "What I learned in that moment was…the only thing that matters."
Question 3 Which of the following is true about the narrative selection? A) The narrative includes too many people and too many moments. B) The narrative does not convey a life lesson from the experience. C) The narrative hooks the reader by revealing her inner thoughts. D) The narrative jumps between settings and is confusing.	Question 4 The reader can conclude (or infer) that the narrator A) will likely stay in America for a long time because of all the luggage B) is excited about the snow and can't wait to ski with her cousin C) may return to her home country, bringing her cousin back with her D) is moving to America permanently and will never return home

© languageartsteachers